Somebody beside the Eastern Forwarding Co. profited by the arrival of the Deutschland. Ambitious photographers and moving picture men strove in vain to get a view of the submersible Wednesday. Their efforts up to afternoon were futile. Then some bright mind conceived the idea of mounting his machine on the roof of a dwelling on the embankment near the office of the New London harbor commission. He was givdon harbor commission. He was given ready permission by the owner for the small fee of $5. He communicated the rate to his associate artists and it is estimated that the said owner collected approximately $100 in this manner. Still another film operator took more desperate chance and hired the use of a pile driver and tug. Climbing to the topmost point of the driver, placed close to the floating fence which protects the Deutschland, he clicked away at his leisure, with good results.
